

Spain's wolves make a comeback

In Spain wolves are making a comeback. In recent years their numbers have increased to such an extent that the country is now seen as a wolf stronghold. This development has delighted conservationists, who, not long ago feared the animal's imminent extinction. But farmers take a very different view, due to the attacks that wolves carry out on their livestock.